USA National Women's Cricket Tournament

The 2010 USA National Women's Cricket Tournament took place June 4-6 at the Cupertino Library ground in California. Five teams from around the country contested for the National Championship: Atlantic, New York, North East, Western Chargers, Western Firebirds They represented many walks of life and in age, they ranged from high schoolers to grandmothers.

Each team played two matches over the three days. The North East team took the top honors. But the other four teams played well too and it came down to net run rate for determining the Runners-Up. This went to the local team, Western USACA director for the western region. Out of the 60 plus players, Indomatie Goordial-John of the North East team stood out with her heavy hitting, especially in the first match. Racking up 95 runs as well as taking one wicket during that match against the Western Chargers, her effort was the base for a 281 score in their 40 overs which the Chargers could not overcome. Doris Francis of the New York team was one of the outstanding bowlers who gave only 10 runs in 8 overs while taking 3 wickets in the match against the Western Firebirds. During the match with the Western Chargers, Gul Imran from the Atlantic team also
